I met cape about 12-13 years ago. I was coming into a new school, weird, scared, and different. Cape was one of the first people to reach out to me and make me feel Welcome and offered friendship. Growing up through middle school and high school she was one of my best friends. We may have not spent every minute together, but confided in each other And would sneak out of our houses late at night just to sit and talk about life. Things that seem so minuscule now. I will forever miss those nights. Talking, crying, but most of all laughing. We haven't been as close the last few years, but every time I saw her it was like we never skipped a beat. I regret every time she wanted to take a picture and I'd say "no, let's do it next time. We have so many more times to take pictures!" I'll regret not having documented those times. She was one of the best and sincere souls I have ever had the pleasure of walking into my life. Her contagious laugh will be one of the things I miss most. She touched the soul of everyone she met and left a lasting impression that they will never forget. She was full of life, laughter, happiness, and making the best out of life. She truly was an angel walking on earth. I will miss her everyday.

Cape was at my house that morning, looking so beautiful as always, and she didn't need to wear makeup she was lucky for her naturally beauty. I French braided her hair which she was obsessed with because she had never had it done before and of course she looked even more beautiful than you would think possible! She was also able to spend time with my daughter Ashlynn, She was her Ti Ti Cape<3 I met Cape in middle school and that bond never ended. She also went to school with my daughters father and they were close friends as well. Our family will forever miss her and it breaks my heart to pieces knowing I won't get to see that pretty face walk through my door ever again or hear that contagious laugh.. she was always smilin and laughing! She truly had a love for life and I'm so happy that she found someone (Bill) who loved her so much everyday, and it comforts me knowing when she passed she was not alone. I know how much she loved her mom and her entire family and how close they were.. she was so lucky to be surrounded by love and live in such a loving home <3 (of course I wrote a novel, cape knows, I can't start typing without endung up writing an entire book) You're missed so much my boo! This is still so surreal. But I know I'll see you again and you'll forever have a piece of my heart <\3 Love you boo
