“ Brenda and family, this is Leonard B. Fowler. You should know that Edward was always more than my neighbor. He was my friend, my mentor, and just as much my big brother as John, Kenny, and O'donald. In some ways a better big brother because we had no sibling rivalries. Our only rivalry was on the basketball court, but it wasn't really a rivalry because he was so good that I never beat him anyway. But every time that I loss to him, he would tell me exactly what I did wrong. But the next game he'd pull out a new bag of tricks. ' I am a school teacher now, but Edward was also a teacher. He was a "Life Teacher". I can't share just one memory with you because we were friends since I was 9 years old, and we had thousands of memories. His teachings to me on the basketball court and in the neighborhood, I suspect are for more significant than anything that I do in the classroom. Without him, I ,might not have become the man that I am. I might not be with you at this time physically, but I am with you in spirit and in love.

“ Brenda, I'm sorry for your loss. I pray that God will strengthen you and your family as you go through this time of difficulty. On a happier note they say you learn something new everyday. After thirty three years it was Edward's middle name' which was Alan. Know that all is well because God is in control and he will not let you go. I'll cherish the memory always and forever. My Amigo, My Friend.

“ When The Lord told us 2 weeks prior to E Brown's death He was coming soon to take him home, my grieving heart filled with joy. When a beautiful pink rainbow appeared over E Brown's house on the morning of his passing, my heart filled with joy because I knew The Lord was taking my brother home that day. My heart, although heavy, rejoices because my brother fulfilled his purpose here on Earth and is now resting in The Lord. No more pain, no more suffering, no more chemo, no more being drained of fluids, no more treatments. He's earned his wings. He is free and is soaring now. E Brown, are the best brother. There's no past tense because your memory shall live on. Your legacy of being a good man, filled with compassion and who would help anyone will live on. My life has been enriched having known you.

Rest well, my sweet brother. We will see one another one day when my work here is finished.
