“ I remember babysitting for Aunt Eva and Uncle Bill. They were younger than my own parents, and they seemed more interesting because of that. They were very kind to me always. I especially remember Aunt Eva brushing my waist-length hair whenever we were together until I got it cut my freshman year of high school. I also remember that she was a good cook. Living away all these years, I haven't seen them for a long time. I know they loved living up at the lake.
