A short letter to my Big Brother ,when Dad died at 42, and I was just a (smart ass) young junior in high school who thought he knew everything-but really didn't. Now looking back from a much improved perspective(age does that) and watching you struggle to regain your heath this last year, made me open my eyes and see how you were the role model I needed to help me grow up back then..And it was also this last year that made me realized how much you really met to me....I'll love and miss you, Always. Your brother JIM
