“ Bob,

Hey Boy. I don't really know what to say. I just talked to you, and then a few hours later...

We had just solved some of the world's most pressing problems. We always knew we were either the 2 smartest guys on the planet, or the 2 stupidest. I guess I'm the only one left.

We always told each other that we would kill the other if he died, an idle threat, but we knew what we meant.

You were always there if I needed you, I was always there if you needed me. We griped to each other, we laughed together, and we shook our heads with each other when the world did something really stupid.

We had philosophical discussions, religious discussions, and sometimes really silly discussions. We didn't always agree with the other's point of view, but someone has to play Devil's advocate.

I hope that you are in that place that you always knew you were bound for. If so, save me a seat and put in a good word for me. If you are somewhere else, save me a seat there to.

I'll see you again sometime. I miss you Buddy.

“ Dear Pait Family,

I was saddened to learn of Bob's passing, he was truly a "Good Man" the love of his family was so very important to him. The loving way he spoke about Ginny with the twinkle in his eyes and the smile that said a lot! his son, his pride. The many things I had learned from him on my job - priceless - His sense of humor was amazing and laugh (my face still hurts from his jokes and his stories,) So many people considered him a friend, and myself included.

A good man is gone, never to be forgotten.

Sincerely,

“ After 30+ years, I can honestly say Bob was my best friend. One meets thousands of people in life, fewer than a dozen will be close friends, even fewer will be what Bob called "closest friends". I will miss our annual camping trips, the emails (that always started out with an insult), the practical jokes and staying up most the the night during trips just discussing family, problems and mutual dislike of doctors, government and everyone else we could think of.

This was a man who meant what he said and said what he meant. His word was his bond and his friendship, limitless and very much worth having.

Few of you will know this, but I have a younger brother, Henry, who is mentally retarded. People with this problem develop few close friends, Bob never let this stop him. He was decent, patient and caring in every way. To Henry, this is a greater loss than I can express.

Thank you Bob, for your decency, your kindness and, most of all, your friendship. I will miss you, but never forget you.###imported-begin##Haven Carskadon & Family###imported-end##

“ I'm not good at saying good bye especially under these circumstances. But I'll try my best if my eyes don't well up with tears.
Bob was my friend whose good heart, integrity, sense of justice and his special sense of humor impressed me from the very beginning. Yes, three years of writing back and forth, discussing politics, joking and in general talking about any subject that struck his mind gave a chance to get to know him real well.

For the ones he left behind, I only pray to God that you will gather the strength to remember him without the anguish and the devastating pain. Bob would not want that.

And to Bob: My dear, dear Friend you made me laugh for three long years, May the Lord accompany you in your Journey. You'll be in my heart.##imported-begin##argie peteargie@aol.com##imported-end##

“ Bob (Phoenixbandit) and I circled around each other, threatening a "shoot out" at the O.K. Corral over a dazzlin' dance hall damsel known as Zibet. This struttin' and bluffin', callin' out and stalking around the saloon, went on for days and days on end, week after week, where he, Zi and I (a/a/a. "Two469") participated in an online chat room called Answerology.com.

In a place with 50% anonymous posters, and another 25% semi-regulars, there were a core of us who helped to keep things rolling along with political sparks, social commentary, dating, contemporary national and international news events, and the interspersed dollops of very high or very bawdy humor. That last part is where Phoenixbandit (Bob) and Two469 held 'cowboy court'. Many of our compatriots who watched from astride the fence rails and atop the fence posts, chortled and whooped while the two of us strutt and preened, huffed and bluffed, and generally acted like two dorky geezers about to shoot-up half the town (by being such bad shots!) in our quest for this darling lil' gal, Zibet. And that lil' dickens of a cutie pie played us both off of each other.

All of that's fun and frivolity has come to an end now, with Bob's passing. We never shared a moment of "face time", but we shared a love of the West, of cowboy movies and cowboy lore, of firearms, motorcycles, chrome wheel chairs and double-wide nurses aides to push them down the rutted streets of Tombstone.

No, Bob and I never shared a moment of face time, but i knew the "look" of the inner man. He was kind, gentle, loving and had a guffaw sense of humor. I've lost a cyber-friend, who was much, much more than that.

My heart goes out to his family and close friends, his "Brothers in Blue and NRA compatriots.

The world has a big hole in it tonight. It'll take a long time for it to be bandaged over.

My God find Bob a big, black Harley to ride up there. If He don't, there'll be hell to pay!

“ It was October 21, 2008 when I first met Robert. He was one of the nicest people I have ever met. What I am going to miss the most about Leo was him trying to take me from Maelynn. My favorite memory with Leo was when I decided to bike ride 14 miles over to Jay's house to see Maelynn and Leo was there. I had wanted a hug from Maelynn and she said no and Leo stood up and gave me a hug and a kiss lol. Thus started the joke of him trying to take me from Maelynn. I will miss our heated conversations about religion and the government. Leo was the friend everyone wanted to be friends with. He lived life to the fullest and is a inspiration to all. I send my condolences to the Pait family. Thank you Leo you helped show me the real meaning of life love ya man!##imported-begin##Christopher Mason CMason41290@yahoo.com##imported-end##
