“ It's a sad day to anyone who knew you, it was a privilege to have known you. I have so many memories growing up as kids. You had a shyness to you until that shell was broke. I loved your deep but low voice. You had a beautiful but contagious smile, and a one in a million laugh. I just talked to you, then to hear this news. We didn't see each other everyday, but you were my cousin. I grew up with and played with, I loved you, your my family my blood. I just found a pic where we were all dressed up as ninja turtles lol. To only go back to that, and maby things would be different. You just graduated to give ur family a good life!! Your wife should have been proud and felt like the luckiest lady. You were all about your family, most of all being a dad. There's not to many men willing to stay home and spend time with their boys, instead of going out. You were truly one in a million!! No matter if we talked everyday I loved you and always will, your my cousin I have so many memories with. Love you Robb and we will all meet again. Just wish you didn't go so early.. your with grandma now. I know your watching down on your boys, and family. Rest Easy Robb love you and can't wait to see you again!! 😭
