“ Bill and I went to high school together and followed that with employment at LOF both of us working in the area of quality assurance. Also played golf and bowled on numerous occasions. Bill was a fine person who I respected and will miss. My last visit to Toledo from my FL home included a breakfast with Bill and friends. It was a great occasion which will leave me with warm memories. I pray the family has strength during this period of grief.

“ One cup milk
½ cup sugar
1/3 cup butter
2 large eggs
4.5 cups flour
2 tbs cinnamon
350 degree Oven
20 minutes

And you have cinnamon rolls.

My old buddy Margaret would have made them this way.

But the ones I first remember were not homemade. They were simple ones in a foil bottom tray, provided to toddler me, by Bills granddad Earl. Who not surprisingly I still think of today as a great man. Later in time Hellen carried the torch at the cottage and loving providing cinnamon rolls. If I wasn't there in the morning, I may well hear later in the day, Jeff we saved you a cinnamon roll. God bless Hellen Hubbell.

So what does this say and much more say about Bill?

- He was a man of fine ancestry
- He knew how to pick a good woman

Summer is defined as the time between summer solstice and autumnal equinox. Growing up at our house summer was defined by when Bill put the pump in and when he took it out. Mom looked forward to verbal sparring with Bill and morning coffee with Hellen more than anything. I remember almost peeing my pants at endless stories and jokes told over an old gray painted table at the cottage.

Fudge is a chocolate, butter and sugar confection popular on Mackinaw Island. Bill taught us it was also a sanitized expletive used after a hook or slice while slamming a driver head into turf. My Dad, Bill, brother Richard and I played golf on weekends mornings.

We were hackers but had good days and good times.

On one of Bills last trips to the lake, I was really glad to see him. His memory had diminished but he still enjoyed and laughed at jokes even when only the punch line could be remembered, "Supplies".

What started with Earl has turned into a five generation long friendship for which I am forever grateful.

But will miss Bill. I will miss his smile, miss the laughs and groans his good and bad jokes provided, and miss the acceptance and caring of a lifelong friend.
